Legitimizing Austerity

The Politics of Crisis in Southern Europe

Tiago Moreira Ramalho, Université libre de Bruxelles, Belgium

The post-pandemic economic recession has plunged European leaders into fresh debates about how the European economy should be governed.

Proposing a new understanding of the politics of austerity in southern Europe after the euro crisis, this book draws comparisons between Greece, Spain and Portugal in order to shed new light on the origins, successes and failures of the politics of austerity.

Between the Seas

Island Identities in the Baltic and Mediterranean Seas

Deborah Paci, Ca' Foscari University of Venice, Italy

Takes a comparative view of insularity in island identities through case studies of islands in the Baltic and Mediterranean Seas. Examining multiple sites of these islands' identities such as history, environmental concerns and governance systems, this study provides a historical perspective into the relations between islands and the larger geopolitical regions around them as well as historicizing "insularist" rhetoric deployed by pro-independence groups within them. Paci analyzes the increasing political importance of islands in the European Union alongside the history of island insularity.

This is Only the Beginning

The Making of a New Left, From Anti-Austerity to the Fall of Corbyn

Michael Chessum, Independent Researcher

Looking for answers to problems ignored by the political class - low-wages, un-achievable house prices, global warming - a new global, young and left-wing movement was born from student Occupy campaigning. This is the inside story of how the left came back to life in the 2010s, from a man who found himself at the centre of events - featuring unparalleled access and a range of interviews with key left-wing figures. Influential journalist and activist Michael Chessum explains how this movement was built, why it failed, and what it needs to do now.

Uncontrollable Women

Radicals, Reformers and Revolutionaries

Nan Sloane

Using inspirational stories of female political pioneers from the 1800's, Nan Sloane explores the period in which women began to enter the public space to seek change. Illuminating a time when the first demands were made for female suffrage, when women began to organise on their own account, and when working-class women and men began to assert their collective presence and voice, this is a history of radical, reformist and revolutionary women. Sloane shows how they played a part in developing political ideas and freedoms as we know them today, and the vital battles they fought which are still ongoing.

Gay Rights under Jimmy Carter

The Revolution that Dared Not Speak Its Name

Harris Dousemetzis, Durham University, UK

Examining a significant and largely unexplored aspect of Jimmy Carter's presidency (1977-1981), this book looks at his administration's role in the development and recognition of gay rights in the United States, as well as the efforts of activists and President Carter's personal commitment and support for this ground-breaking change in societal attitudes.

White Sports/Black Sports: Racial Disparities in Athletic Programs

Lori Latrice Martin, Louisiana State University, USA

This new edition features a new chapter examining the history of Black athletes in college sports and the historic and contemporary role of the NCAA in exploiting their labor. Lori Latrice Martin's influential text continues to give readers a keen understanding of how sports influence and are influenced by society, and the ways in which institutional barriers and personal practices perpetuate racism in sports and in society at large.

America's Gun Wars

A Cultural History of Gun Control in the United States

Donald J. Campbell, U.S. Military Academy at West Point, USA

America's Gun Wars contends that an understanding of America's gun controversy cannot be found in statistics documenting the rise (or fall) of violent crime, or in examining trade-offs between societal needs and personal safety, or in following the political maneuvering of advocacy groups such as the National Rifle Association or Everytown for Gun Safety. At heart, the gun controversy is a values conflict involving how people see themselves and how they make sense of the world they live in. Understanding this controversy requires a deep analysis of the profoundly different cultures inhabited by pro- and anti-gun activists, lawmakers, and voters.

Presidents and Mass Incarceration

Linda K. Mancillas, Georgia Gwinnett College, USA

American presidents from Lyndon B. Johnson to Donald J. Trump have operated as significant political criminal justice entrepreneurs and the leadership choices made at the top by these chief executives have severe repercussions for the citizens at the lowest levels of our communities. Linda K. Mancillas references State of the Union Addresses, presidential initiatives, laws passed by Congress, Supreme Court decisions, and public opinion on high-profile crime events to assemble a cohesive framework of data that supports each president's impact on the incarceration explosion. Readers will come away with a greater appreciation for the complexity and magnitude of the political, economic, and societal issue of over-imprisonment that both the federal and state governments are attempting to address.

The Dysfunctional Politics of the Affordable Care Act

Greg M. Shaw, Illinois Wesleyan University, USA

An important book for anyone concerned about the skyrocketing costs of health care in the United States, the work helps readers better understand one of the most important policy challenges of our time. Chapters explain why congressional Democrats designed the Affordable Care Act of 2010 as they did, clarifies some of the consequences of the act's features, and examines why Republicans have fought the implementation of the law so fiercely. Finally, the book details what the public knows—and doesn't know—about the law and discusses the prospects for citizens gaining the knowledge they should have about the overall issue of health-policy reform.

Saving the Electoral College

Why the National Popular Vote Would Undermine Democracy

Robert M. Hardaway

In this new history of the Electoral College, law professor Robert M. Hardaway lays bare the constitutional loopholes that have allowed this movement to succeed in states representing approximately half the electoral votes necessary to purportedly bind those states to ignore the popular vote of the people within their respective states. The presentation of the information in this book to state legislatures considering the compact, resulted in complete reversal of preconceived perceptions about how presidential elections should be conducted.

The Failed Promise of Sentencing Reform

Michael O'Hear, Marquette University, USA

Michael O'Hear exposes the myths that American prison sentencing reforms enacted in the 21st century have failed to have the expected effect because U.S. prisons are filled to capacity with nonviolent drug offenders as a result of the "war on drugs" or because of new laws that took away the discretion of judges and corrections officials. O'Hear then makes a convincing case for the real reasons sentencing reforms have come up short: because they exclude violent and sexual offenders, and because they rely on the discretion of officials who still have every incentive to be highly risk-averse. He also highlights how overlooking the well-being of offenders and their families in our consideration of sentencing reform has undermined efforts to effect real change.

The Police in a Free Society

Safeguarding Rights While Enforcing the Law

Todd Douglas, Formerly of the Defense Intelligence Agency, USA

Readers will better understand what police officers must deal with on a daily basis, grasp the role of lawmakers in keeping faith with the public, and appreciate the tremendous challenges that police leaders face in attempting to reverse recent trends and shore up public confidence in police officers. This is a rare glimpse into the often-ugly reality of what happens on America's streets, with insights gained from the perspective of the cop and suspect alike.

The American Flag

An Encyclopedia of the Stars and Stripes in U.S. History, Culture, and Law

John R. Vile

The encyclopedia provides a thorough historical examination of key developments in the design of the American flag as well as laws and court decisions related to the flag and the First Amendment. In relation to the flag's history, it also discusses evolving public attitudes about its importance as a national symbol. The encyclopedia contains illuminating scholarly essays on presentations of the flag in American politics, the military, and popular culture including art, music, and journalism. Additionally, these essays address important rules of flag etiquette and modern controversies related to them, from flag-burning to refusing to stand during the playing of the U.S. National Anthem.

Bonds of Blood?

State-building and Clanship in Chechnya and Ingushetia

Ekaterina Sokirianskaia, Norwegian Institute of International Affairs, Norway

Based on over 200 interviews, this features never-before-seen access to the archives of the Chechen Parliament during the period of de facto independence. Focusing on a systematic analysis of subnational state-building in post-Soviet Chechnya and Ingushetia and the role of teips (clans) in this process, this study reassesses the claim that governance and ethnic consolidation in the North Caucasus are shaped by the politics of teips and the belief that late and uneven modernization, and the survival of tribal structures, have been accountable for systematic failures in state-building in the region.

Why Irrational Politics Appeals

Understanding the Allure of Trump

Edited by Mari Fitzduff

Why Irrational Politics Appeals: Understanding the Allure of Trump takes a serious, scientific look at Trump and his politics against the backdrop of modern American society. It brings together experts from a variety of psychological and political science fields to answer the mystifying question of why people by the millions would follow a leader who to so many others seems unqualified, undiplomatic, and in opposition to previously established standards for a national leader.

Russian Warfare and Influence

States in the Intersection Between East and West

Edited by Mikael Weissmann, Swedish Institute of International Affairs & Niklas Nilsson, Uppsala University, Sweden

The open access anthology takes a holistic approach to how Russia carries out hybrid warfare against its neighbouring countries - states at the intersection between the East and West. The volume addresses the vulnerabilities of these countries to Russian influence and hybrid warfare tactics, as well as their responses to this security challenge. It covers local developments in states such as Ukraine, Belarus, Finland, Armenia, Serbia, analysing specific scenarios and practices to develop the current conceptual understanding of hybrid warfare as a phenomenon.

Japanese War Crimes during World War II

Atrocity and the Psychology of Collective Violence

Frank Jacob

The volume starts by examining the Rape of Nanjing, then goes on to address Japan's acts of individual and collective violence throughout the conflict. Unlike other works on the subject, it combines historical, sociological, and psychological perspectives on violence with a specific study of the Japanese army, seeking to define the reasons for the use of extreme violence in each particular case. Both a historical survey and an explanation of Japanese warfare, the book scrutinizes incidents of violence perpetrated by the Japanese vis-à-vis theories that explore the use of violence as part of human nature. In doing so, it provides far-reaching insights into the use of collective violence and torture in war overall, as well as motivations for committing atrocities. Finally, the author discusses current political implications stemming from Japan's continued refusal to acknowledge its war-time actions as war crimes.

Confronting China

U.S. Defense Policy in an Era of Great Power Competition

Edited by James H. Anderson, Institute of World Politics, USA & Daniel R. Green, U.S. Navy Reserves, USA

Informed by senior policymakers with extensive expertise in defense, this book provides a comprehensive regional and functional perspective on U.S. policy toward China by addressing the central security question of our generation: How best can the United States deter Chinese aggression and win peace? Drawing on the insightful analysis of more than a dozen senior national security practitioners, chapters discuss the China challenge from multiple perspectives. Drawing upon each writer's particular areas of expertise, chapter authors provide concrete, strategy-based, and resource-informed policy recommendations.

The Rise of the American Security State

The National Security Act of 1947 and the Militarization of U.S. Foreign Policy

M. Kent Bolton, California State University San Marcos, USA

Since September 11, 2001, the White House—under both political parties—has pushed the envelope of taking the United States to war (without declarations), interrogating prisoners of war, spying on potential threats, and acting unilaterally. Why have these trends occurred? How has the apex of foreign power shifted, causing a sea change that has fueled a continual turf war between Capitol Hill and the White House? And perhaps most critically, what is America's role in the world now, and what should it be?

Migration, Terrorism, and the Future of a Divided Europe

A Continent Transformed

Christopher Deliso

Migration, Terrorism, and the Future of a Divided Europe: A Continent Transformed chronicles the turbulent events of the 2015–2016 migration crisis, creating a context in which future political, economic, social, and security trends in Europe can be understood. The study also examines in detail the deep history of the ideological origins and histories of treaties and policies that have defined the European Union and its guidance of the crisis.

Weaponizing Cyberspace

Inside Russia's Hostile Activities

Nicholas Michael Sambaluk

Russian activity in the cyber domain is infamous in the United States and other Western countries. Weaponizing Cyberspace explores the Russian proclivity, particularly in the 21st century, for using cyberspace as an environment in which to launch technical attacks and disinformation campaigns that sow chaos and distraction in ways that provide short-term advantage to autocrats in the Kremlin.

Ground Truth

The Moral Component in Contemporary British Warfare

Edited by Frank Ledwidge, University of Portsmouth, UK, Helen Parr, University of Keele, UK & Aaron Edwards, Royal Military Academy Sandhurst, UK

After twenty years of almost unbroken wars of choice, the deficiencies in the ethical and operational conduct of war by Western armed forces, has largely been ignored by scholarly critique. This volume addresses these deficiencies and demonstrates that they in fact represent the culmination of decades of erosion of military professionalism. Contributions in this edited collection are written by some of the UK's leading soldiers, veterans and scholars working in the fields of military ethics and contemporary conflict.

Conventional and Unconventional War

A History of Conflict in the Modern World

Thomas R. Mockaitis

Written by noted military historian Thomas R. Mockaitis, this book explores conventional and unconventional conflicts and considers the relationships between them. It considers how epic struggles like the American Civil War, World Wars I and II, and the conflicts in the Middle East, among many others, shaped human history. The coverage serves to highlight four themes: the relationship between armed forces and the societies that create them; the impact of technology (not just armaments) on warfare; the role of ideas and attitudes towards violence in determining why and how wars are fought; and the relationship between conventional and unconventional operations.

Decolonizing Environmentalism

Alternative Visions and Practices of Environmental Action

Prakash Kashwan, University of Connecticut, USA & Aseem Hasnain, Bridgewater State University, USA

Decolonizing Environmentalism makes visible the simplifications and erasures of mainstream environmental movements, while reimagining our collective commitment to environmental stewardship in a way that builds on the knowledge and praxis of indigenous people, racial minorities, and rural communities. The authors deconstruct popular ideas, such as 'green consumption' and 'sustainable development' to show how these concepts rest on misleading assumptions, which are based on colonial conceptualizations of conquering nature and European Modernity's view of there being a fundamental separation between nature and society.

Leave It in the Ground

The Politics of Coal and Climate

John C. Berg, Suffolk University, USA

John C. Berg explains how ending the burning of coal (and of oil and natural gas) is a political problem rather than a technical one; explodes the "clean coal" myth, providing scientific documentation of how burning coal emits more greenhouse gases per unit of energy than any other fuel; and describes how controlling coal use in the United States will also restore the possibility of a meaningful international climate agreement. Additionally, readers will understand the critical importance of activism—from local to international—in spurring government regulation to control the coal industry, which can only be defeated politically.

Cyber Warfare

A Reference Handbook

Paul J. Springer, Air Command and Staff College, USA

Explains the world of cyber warfare in authoritative but lay friendly terms. First, the volume details the historical evolution of cyber warfare and the different forms it can take, from crippling attacks on power grids and communications networks to secret intelligence gathering. From there it moves into a wide-ranging exploration of the main controversies and issues surrounding cyber security and cyber warfare, as well as coverage of major cyber warfare attacks, the organizations responsible, and the steps that the United States and other countries are taking to protect themselves from this constantly evolving threat.

Political Cyberbullying

Perpetrators and Targets of a New Digital Aggression

Sheri Bauman, University of Arizona, USA

Psychologist Sheri Bauman, an expert on cyberbullying who has addressed audiences across the nation and internationally, summarizes the world of political cyber-aggression, its perpetrators and their psyche, and its targets and how they are chosen. She then explains steps we can take to defuse the effectiveness and the harms of these online assaults. Case studies bring primary points to life, and the clarity of the text appeals to students, researchers, and others interested in aggression, communication, and politics online.

Patriarchy in Practice

Ethnographies of Everyday Masculinities

Edited by Nikki van der Gaag, Amir Massoumian, SOAS, UK & Dan Nightingale, UCL, UK

This collection covers a diverse and multi-disciplinary range of topics on how masculinities might be re-imagined outside of patriarchal power structures.

Contributors engage with theoretical frameworks engaging with feminist theory, contemporary politics of gender, bodies and marginalised experiences of masculinities. Global case studies are wide-ranging and include analysis of masculinity among communities such as drag artists, InCels and e-sports enthusiasts, as well as in the context of the body, for instance in relation to alcoholism and physical disability.

Controlling Cyberspace

The Politics of Internet Governance and Regulation

Carol M. Glen

Controlling Cyberspace: The Politics of Internet Governance and Regulation covers a broad range of issues related to Internet governance, presenting a technical description of how the Internet works, an overview of the Internet governance ecosystem from its earliest days to the present, an examination of the roles of the United Nations and other international and regional organizations in Internet governance, and a discussion of Internet governance in relation to specific national and international policies and debates. Readers will consider if access to the Internet is a human right and if the right to freedom of expression applies equally to the exchange of information online.

From Rage to Reason

Why We Need Sex Crime Laws Based on Facts, Not Fear

Emily Horowitz, St. Francis College, USA

In this timely and extensively researched book, sociologist Emily Horowitz shows how current sex-offense policies in the United States create new forms of harm and prevent those who have caused harm from the process of constructive repentance or contributing to society after punishment. Horowitz also illustrates the failure of criminal justice responses to social problems. Sharing detailed narratives from the experiences of those on registries and their loved ones, Horowitz reveals the social impact and cycle of violence that results from dehumanizing and banishing those who have already been held accountable.

Perspectives on Countering Extremism

Diversion and Disengagement

Edited by Shashi Jayakumar, Nanyang Technological University, Singapore

This volume analyzes Diversion strategies being deployed worldwide, aimed at diverting or deflecting individuals, and communities, from the path of radicalization. These include Diversion methods used among social workers, teachers, counselors and the police both in relation to individuals and communities. Case studies range across the Global North and South, presented by both academic and practitioner contributors, and address different branches of radicalization, the variety of strategies used as Diversion, and the results of these interventions.

Humanizing Humanity

Tagore, Gandhi and Ambedkar

Bidyut Chakrabarty, Previously, Vice-Chancellor, Visva-Bharati, India

This book explores the strands of inter-textuality that exists when Tagore, Gandhi and Ambedkar's thinking is situated in the ontic and epistemic context of a few humans tendency to destroy humanity and the efforts of another section to create conditions for its preservation. Bidyut Chakrabarty does this by comparing the ways in which the Federalist Papers of the United States of America and the Indian Constitution manifest as quintessential texts that uphold the principles of liberty, equality, justice, and the protection of the weaker sections of the society from structured strands of domination and exploitation.

Carceral Worlds

Legacies, Textures and Futures

Edited by Hanneke Stuit, University of Amsterdam, the Netherlands, Jennifer Turner, University of Oldenburg, Germany & Julienne Weegels, University of Amsterdam, the Netherlands

We live a world in which the number of prisons is growing and experiences of incarceration are increasingly widespread. Carceral Worlds offers a necessary and timely contribution to understanding these carceral realities of the globalized present. The book asks how the carceral has become so central in life, how it manifests in different geographical locations and, finally, what the likely consequences are of living in such a carceral world.

Carceral Worlds focuses on carceral practices, experiences and imaginaries that reach far beyond traditional spaces of confinement. It shows the lasting effects of colonial carceral heritage, the influence of prison systems on city management, and the entrapping nature of digital infrastructures. It also discusses new urbanized forms of migrant detention, the relation between prisons and homelessness, the use of carceral metaphors in the everyday, and the carceral implications of the uneven distribution of climate risk across the globe.

The volume brings together work from scholars across the world and from a variety of disciplines in the social sciences and humanities, offering a fresh approach to the carceral as a central vector in modern life.

Global Governance and Social Democracy

Between Neoliberal and Authoritarian Capitalism

Dimitri A. Sotiropoulos, National and Kapodistrian University of Athens, Greece & Nicos P. Mouzelis, London School of Economics, UK

This ambitious book offers a global perspective on the nature of capitalism; its past and future possibilities of survival; the differentiation between neoliberal, authoritarian and social democratic systems, exemplified by the United States, EU and China; and the conflict relationships between them. Reflecting on urgent global risks, such as climate change, pandemics and nuclear confrontation - Mouzelis & Sotiropoulos explore why these risks can only be dealt with by the cooperation of these three major players in the global arena.

Human Rights at the Intersections

Transformation through Local, Global, and Cosmopolitan Challenges

Edited by Anthony Tirado Chase, Occidental College, USA, Pardis Mahdavi, Arizona State University, USA, Hussein Banai, Indiana University, USA & Sofia Gruskin, University of Southern California, USA

Exploring the "lived realities of human rights" that are shown to exist outside of traditional state-centrism and beyond a local-cosmopolitan binary, the contributions in this open access collection critically engage with debates on localism and cosmopolitanism, weaving insights from social sciences, humanities, and medicine into a broader call for interdisciplinary scholarship informed by practice.

Food Shortage Crisis

Origins and Global Impact

Dawn M. Drake, University of Oklahoma, USA

Discover the history, causes, impacts, and potential future of global food shortages—a problem for all of humanity, not just the developing world.

The book begins with an introduction to the basics of global food shortages, moves through the history of the issue, and then explains the current state of affairs. From there, it examines root causes, proposes solutions, and takes a speculative look into the future. A selection of further readings at the end of each chapter points readers toward resources for additional research and discovery. The book concludes with a selection of perspective essays written by expert contributors.

Health Apps, Genetic Diets and Superfoods

When Biopolitics Meets Neoliberalism

Tina Sikka, Newcastle University, UK

Examines the contemporary landscape surrounding health and wellness culture through the lens of personalization, genetification, and functional foods. These developments have had significant impact on the categories of gender, race, and class in light of the increasing adoption of digital health and surveillance technologies like MyFitnessPal, Lifesum, HealthyifyMe, and Fooducate. These three vectors of identity, when analysed in relation to food, diet, health, and technology, reveal significant new ways in which inequality, hierarchy, and injustice become manifest.
