Iran at the Paris Peace Conference

International Diplomacy and the Pursuit of Imperial Nationalism

Philip Grobien

Using primary Persian and other previously unused source material this book describes Iran's activities at the Peace of Paris in 1919 and how Iran's intentions and desiderata were to put them at loggerheads with Britain's own plans for Iran and the Middle East. It shows that Iran's diplomacy in Paris was to be the focal point of a politically vibrant and febrile period after WWI and provides an in-depth study of this important transitional period, when Iran first set out a programme for a contemporary, territorial, yet imperial nationalism, between the Qajar and Pahlavi dynasties.

The Memoirs of Shah Tahmasp I

Safavid Ruler of Iran

Shah Tahmasp I

Edited by Andrew Peacock

Translated by Andrew Peacock

A remarkable first-person narrative by a sixteenth-century Iranian ruler, the Memoirs of the Safavid Shah Tahmasp (1514-1576), originally written in Persian, represent a vitally important primary source for the history of the Middle East in the period. They shed light on the Safavid conflict with the Uzbeks and Ottomans, which played a decisive role in shaping the modern frontiers of the region. The Memoirs also represent an invaluable source for the internal political and religious life of the Safavid court, and the ways in which Shah Tahmasp, one of the most important rulers in Iranian history, wished to be remembered and viewed. This first English translation is furnished with an extensive introduction and notes that situate the work in its literary and historical context.

Zoroastrianism in India and Iran

Persians, Parsis and the Flowering of Political Identity

Alexandra Buhler, formerly of SOAS, University of London, UK

This book examines the strong relationship between the Zoroastrian community in Iran and the Zoroastrian community in India from the mid-nineteenth century to the 1920s. Using a variety of original sources from Britain, India and Iran, Alexandra Buhler looks at the political, legal, and social position of Zoroastrians in Iran and how different events impacted their attitudes as well as the attitudes of Zoroastrians in India towards their ancestral homeland.

Education and the Cultural Cold War in the Middle East

The Franklin Book Programs in Iran

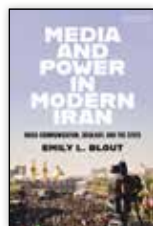

Mahdi Ganjavi

This book uses archival sources from the Franklin Book Program (FBP) and US and Iranian intelligence agencies to piece together the relationship between the FBP and Iran. Put in the context of wider cultural diplomacy projects operated by the US, it reveals the extent to which the programme shaped Iran's educational system. It charts the history of the FBP, its complex network of state and private sector actors. It also shows the role of U.S. librarians, publishers, and academics, and the joint projects the FBP organized in several countries with the help of national ministries of education, financed by U.S. Department of State and U.S. foundations. It sheds new light on the long history of education in imperialist social orders, in the context here of the ongoing struggle for influence in the Cold War.

Media and Power in Modern Iran

Mass Communication, Ideology, and the State

Emily L. Blout, American University, USA

How does a regime that derived its hegemony from the ability to mass-communicate its ideology protect its ideological dominance in an environment characterized by "disruptive power" and "mass self-communication"? What is the role of media in the construction of political power in Iran? This book examines the media institutions, policies, and discourses of Pahlavi and the Islamic Republic of Iran over the course of more than five decades and several communication paradigms. Drawing from over 300 primary sources in Persian and English, including never before used documents from archives in Iran and the United States, it offers a history of Iranian media institutions and strategies from Iran's first encounter with mass communication in the 1940s, to the dawn of digital media in the 1990s, to internet and mobile telephony today.

Russia and the GCC

The Case of Tatarstan's Paradiplomacy
Diana Galeeva, University of Oxford, UK

This book examines the relations between the Gulf States and Russia from the Soviet era to the present day. Using the Republic of Tatarstan, one of Russia's autonomous Muslim polities as a case study, Galeeva demonstrates the emergence of relations between modern Tatarstan and the GCC States. Having conducted fieldwork in the Muslim Republics of Tatarstan, Bashkortostan and Dagestan, the book includes interviews with high-ranking political figures, heads of religious organisations and academics. Moving beyond solely economic and geopolitical considerations, the research in this book sheds light on the increasingly important role, culture and shared Islamic identity play in paradiplomacy efforts.

Palestine in the World

International Solidarity with the Palestinian Liberation Movement

Edited by Sorcha Thomson & Pelle Valentin Olsen, Roskilde University, Denmark

Bringing together scholars with versatile linguistic and interdisciplinary skills, Palestine in the World puts the Palestinian movement into conversation with the models of transnational politics that emerged through the revolutionary period. By treating the Palestinian revolution as a world phenomenon - with cases from Cuba, France, the US, the GDR, Japan and more - this volume reveals the forms of solidarity that shaped the rise of the movement and their afterlives today. It illuminates the rich connected histories of international solidarity that positioned the Palestinian movement as an iconic anticolonial struggle.

The Jewish Agency and Syria during the Arab Revolt in Palestine

Secret Meetings and Negotiations

Mahmoud Muhareb, The Arab Centre for Research and Policy Studies, Doha, Qatar

This book reveals that a multitude of secret meetings took place between the Jewish Agency and Syrian leaders and elites during the early 20th century that change how we should understand the trajectory of the Arab-Israeli conflict. Based mainly on primary sources from Israeli archives, including documentation of discussions, reports and decisions taken by the JA leadership, the book tells a new story of a critical period of history, the Great Palestinian Revolt of 1936-1939.

Material Politics in Turkey

Infrastructure, Science, and Expertise

Edited by Duygu Kasdogan, Ekin Kurtiç & Mehmet Ekinci

This book explores the role of material entities and processes in shaping political lives in Turkey, revealing the formative role of material entities and processes in political processes of infrastructure construction, knowledge production, and technical expertise. Chapters explore the politics of material entities such as roads, canals, oilfields, and mines as well as less elaborated material sites. The interdisciplinary case studies provide important new analytical and theoretical approaches to understanding Turkey's ongoing politics of 'modernisation'.

Mobility and Armenian Belonging in Contemporary Turkey

Migratory Routes and the Meaning of the Local

Salim Aykut Öztürk

Taking an anthropological approach and using ethnographic data from Turkey and Armenia collected over 10 years, this book focuses on themes of migration, human movement, community-making in contemporary Turkey.

Looking at case studies ranging from bus drivers between Armenia and Turkey, undocumented migrants deported from Turkey now living in Armenian cities, and Armenian migrants in contemporary Istanbul neighbourhoods, Salim Aykut Öztürk provides a vivid description of contemporary non-Muslim life in Turkey through the lives of Armenian citizens of Turkey and undocumented migrants from Armenia, as well as Greek, Jewish and Kurdish communities.

Political Violence in Turkey, 1975-1980

The State at Stake

Benjamin Gourisse, Sciences Po Toulouse, France

This book examines the period of political violence in Turkey between 12 March 1971 and 12 September 1980. It sets out a close analysis of the tactics used by the various protagonists in the conflict, showing how they took over public institutions, the first of which was the police. The book challenges the myth of a 'strong' Turkish state viewed as authoritative and autonomous from society, and analyses the structure, mobilization, and strategies of antagonistic radical political groups caught up in the dynamic of this violence (the far-left organisations and the Nationalist Movement, comprising the Nationalist Movement Party and its satellite organisations).

Turkey's Violent Formation

New Social Contracts at the End of the Ottoman Empire

Hans-Lukas Kieser, University of Zurich, Switzerland

The case studies in this book reappraise key events, concepts, and individuals in late Ottoman and early Republican Turkey. Divided into four parts, the book first examines the extreme politico-religious ideology of the late Ottoman period, as well as squandered opportunities for democratic reform of the multi-ethnic empire. It then examines the continuity of these currents in Kemalist Turkey in case studies including an analysis of campaigns against Alevs in Dersim, and biographical studies of key Kemalist actors and ideologues such as Ziya Gökalp and Mahmut Bozkurt. The final part of the book explores the legacy of Turkey's violent formation vis-à-vis its relations with wartime ally Germany in the context of particularly of the Armenian genocide.

Democracy and Capitalism in Turkey

The State, Power, and Big Business

Devrim Adam Yavuz, City University of New York, USA

This book explores the factors that compelled capitalists in Turkey to adopt a more pro-democratic ideology by examining a leading Turkish business lobby (TÜSIAD) which has been pushing for democratic reform since the 1990s, despite representing some of the largest corporation owners in Turkey and having supported the state's authoritarian tendencies in the past such as the military coup of 1980. Drawing on 70 interviews with members of TÜSIAD, the book reveals that business leaders were willing to break away from the state due to the conflict between their evolving economic needs and power with a political elite and state that were unwilling to cater to their demands. In so doing, the book provides a rich account of business-state relations in Turkey as well as providing a case study for the wider study of democracy and capitalism in developing nations.

Shi'ism in Kashmir

A History of Sunni-Shia Rivalry and Reconciliation

Hakim Sameer Hamdani, Indian National Trust for Art & Cultural Heritage, Kashmir, India

The first study dedicated to Shia Islam in Kashmir, this book traces the impact of Sunni dominance and Hindu Rule on Shii society during the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries. The book identifies a distinctive Kashmiri Shii Islam established during this period. Hakim Sameer Hamdani argues that the Shii community's religious and cultural identity was fostered through practices associated with the martyrdom of Imam Hussain and his family in Karbala, as well as other rituals of Islam. The book also sheds light on the emergence of the more ecumenical Muslim outlook we see in Kashmir today.

Making the Modern Turkish Citizen

Vernacular Photography in the Early Republican Era

Özge Baykan Calafato, University of Amsterdam, The Netherlands

Examining the relationship between photography and gender, body and space, as well as materiality and language, this book explores how the production and circulation of vernacular photographs contributed to the making of the modern Turkish citizen in the formative years of the Turkish Republic, when nation-building, secularization and modernization reforms took centre stage. ## The Book of Unveiling: An Introduction to Early Fatimid Ismailism

An English translation of and commentary on the Kitab al-Kashf, attributed to Ja'far b. Mansur al-Yaman

Fâres Gillon

I.B. Tauris in association with the Institute of Ismaili Studies.

The Kitab al-Kashf is one of the earliest Ismaili texts to have reached the present day. It offers unique insight on the early stages of the elaboration of Ismaili doctrine and parallels with Twelver Shi'i, as well as ghulat and Nusayri sources, before and after the rise to power of the Fatimids. This is the first full annotated translation and extensive study of the Kashf.

Al-Din

A Prolegomenon to the Study of the History of Religions

M.A. Draz

Edited by Yahya Haidar, Rochester Institute of Technology Dubai, UAE

Originally published in 1952, al-Din by prominent

Egyptian scholar and thinker Muhammad Abdullah Draz (1894 – 1958) has been critically acclaimed as one of the most significant Arab Muslim studies of universal 'religion' and forms of religiosity in modern times. In it, Draz presents a critical review of classical approaches to the scholarly study of religion.

Translated for the first time in English by Yahya Haidar, this book demonstrates how the scholarly academic study of religion in the West, often described as 'Orientalism' came to influence and help shape a counter-discourse from one of the leading Arab Muslim scholars of his time.

Islamophobia and Lebanon

Visibly Muslim Women and Global Coloniality

Ali Kassem, Sussex University, UK

Islamic dress in Lebanon is the object of numerous forms of overt and covert discrimination and aggression. This book is the first contribution to document the daily experiences of women wearing Islamic dress in the country. Based on interviews with over 100 Sunni and Shia participants, the book argues that they are a form of anti-Muslim racism within the Arab-majority and Muslim-majority so-called Middle East. The book consequently explores the workings of this anti-Muslim racism and its manifestation within the larger structure of Eurocentric modernity/coloniality. It addresses the biases in the study of anti-Muslim racism.

The Brass Band of the King

Armenians in Ethiopia

Boris Adjemian

How and why were 40 Armenian children, survivors of the genocide, adopted in Jerusalem in 1924 by the Crown Prince of Ethiopia Ras Täfäri Mäkonnen? In answering this question, Boris Adjemian here tells the fascinating story of the history and significance of the Armenian presence in Ethiopia. Beginning with the case study of the orphans, the author traces the history of other Armenians who, he shows, adopted Ethiopia as a homeland of substitution. Considered as coreligionists, they were not regarded as foreign by their hosts. The book analyses this extraordinary episode and its legacy, and the profound questions it raises about the making of national and collective identities and diaspora.

Iranian Refugees in Transit

Exile and the Politics of Survival in Turkey after the 1979 Revolution

Maral Jefroudi, International Institute for Research and Education, The Netherlands

This book examines the dynamics of Iranian political refugees settling in and migrating through Turkey after the 1980 coup and how they were able to influence its asylum policies. Maral Jefroudi presents a comprehensive picture of one of the biggest migration waves in contemporary history. Bringing together interviews with refugees from the period, analysing the cultural products by and on them, and tracing their footsteps in newspapers, archives, and scholarly literature, this book presents a thorough ethnography of Iranians in transit in Turkey after the 1979 Revolution.

Migrations in Jordan

Reception Policies and Settlement Strategies

Edited by Jalal Al Hussein, Institut Français du Proche-Orient (Ifpo), Jordan, Norig Neveu, French National Center for Scientific Research (CNRS), France & Valentina Napolitano

Jordan sheds important light on key issues around forced migration in the Middle East. This book is the first to study the long-term impact of multiple immigration flows on Jordanian society from 1948 to the present day. Part One investigates the criteria for integration and exclusion imposed by Jordan and international humanitarian organisations on different groups of refugees. Part Two analyses how state policy impacts the solidarity networks between different migrant communities and the different political, social, religious and family networks that are set up in camps and urban settings. Part Three turns to how migrants shape the Jordanian cityscape and geography themselves.

Struggle for Alliance

Russia and Iran in the Era of War in Ukraine

Edited by Abdolrasool Divsallar, Middle East Institute, USA

This book analyzes Russo-Iranian relations from the perspective of the emerging literature on authoritarian regionalism, exploring the role domestic politics and common threat perceptions play in these states' decisions to adjust to the systemic changes caused by the war in Ukraine. Chapters address how changes in the strategic environment are affecting Moscow and Tehran's perception of each other, what factors contribute the most to both states' decision to pursue greater cooperation and how they manage the new conflicts of interest raised by the war.

Iran under the Mongols

Ilkhanid Administrators and Persian Notables in Fars

Denise Aigle

What were the effects of Mongol rule in Iran? Using a wide variety of sources including official and semi-official historiography; non-official historiography; local sources and geographical and biographical works, this book examines Ilkhanid rule in Fars from a local perspective. Charting the fortunes of successive rulers, Aigle's research shows that the failings of individual rulers, as well as intriguing by Persian notables, were the principal reasons for Shiraz and Fars's economic decline under the Mongols in comparison with the more successful neighbouring province of Kerman. Including a glossary, chronology and genealogical tables for the major Ilkhanid dynasties, as well as analysis of the latest manuscript sources, Iran under the Mongols is a vital contribution to our understanding of the effects of Mongol rule in Iran.

From Byzantine to Norman Italy

Mediterranean Art and Architecture in Medieval Bari

Clare Vernon, Birkbeck, University of London, UK

This book is the first major study to comprehensively analyse the art and architecture of the archdiocese of Bari and Canosa during the Byzantine period and the upheaval of the Norman conquest. The book places Bari and Canosa in a Mediterranean context, arguing that international connections with the eastern Mediterranean were a continuous thread that shaped art and architecture throughout the Byzantine and Norman eras. Clare Vernon has examined a wide variety of media, including architecture, sculpture, metalwork, manuscripts, epigraphy and luxury portable objects, as well as patronage, to illustrate how cross-cultural encounters, the first crusade, slavery and continuities and disruptions in the relationship with Constantinople, shaped the visual culture of the archdiocese.

Britain and the Regency of Tripoli

Consuls and Empire-Building in Nineteenth-Century North Africa

Sara M. ElGaddari

Using the National Archive records of correspondence of the British consuls and diplomats from 1795 to 1832, and within the context of the wider Eastern Question, this book reconstructs the Anglo-Tripolitanian relationship and argues that the Regency of Tripoli played a vital role in Britain's imperial strategy during and after the Napoleonic Wars. Moreover, it contends that the activities of British consuls in Tripoli, and the networks they fostered around themselves, reshaped the nature and extent of British imperial activity in the region.

An Afghan Prince in Victorian England

Race, Class, and Gender in an Afghan-Anglo Imperial Encounter

Robert D. McChesney, New York University, USA

This is the first English account of the diplomatic visit of Afghan Prince Nasr Allah to England in the late nineteenth century. Using both British and Afghan sources and placing the visit in its international and historical context McChesney analyses the agency, motivation and perceptions of the prince towards his hosts and vice versa, including the resistance of the smaller party. He reveals for example that while privately impressed by Britain's military prowess Nasr Allah instructed his colleagues to remain impassive in a successful attempt to frustrate the British. Above all we gain insight into the aims of two asymmetrical yet competing powers and a rare insight into Afghan leaders' attitudes and strategies towards the British Empire.

The Muslim Brotherhood and State Repression in Egypt

A History of Secrecy and Militancy in an Islamist Organization

Ahmed Abou El Zafaf, University of Southern Denmark, Denmark

This book uses extensive archival research to uncover what took place when the Muslim Brotherhood in Egypt was forced underground due to state repression between 1948-1951 and 1954-1970, and how and why it survived. It combines social theory with a vast array of primary source material such as autobiographical accounts produced by members to provide a new bottom-up perspective on the Brotherhood's structure that goes beyond the role of leaders such as Sayyid Qutb to reveal it as both an overt political organisation and a secretive one able to withstand extended and harsh periods of persecution.

Woman at Point Zero

Nawal El Saadawi

Firdaus is on death row. Her crime, the murder of a man. Born to poverty in a rural Egyptian village, her childhood dreams and ambitions had been met with neglect and abuse by the world and the men who rule it. Driven to sex work to support herself, she is faced with the moral outrage of society and the bitter knowledge that for a woman, true freedom comes only when all hope is abandoned.

In Nawal El Saadawi's landmark novel, Woman at Point Zero, published here with a new foreword, Firdaus tells her unforgettable story.

A Daughter of Isis

The Early Life of Nawal El Saadawi, In Her Own Words

Nawal El Saadawi

In A Daughter of Isis, Nawal El Saadawi, author of Woman at Point Zero and one of the Arab world's greatest writers, tells the story of the formative years which shaped an iconic voice in global feminism. In poignant and moving prose we learn about her relationships with her family, her traumatic experience of female genital mutilation at seven years old and escaping suitors at ten and her journey from the rural Egyptian village of her birth to metropolitan Cairo to study medicine. Filled with warmth as well as critical reflection, this book reveals the early years of a remarkable life dedicated to the fight for justice and equality.

God Dies by the Nile and Other Novels

God Dies by the Nile, Searching, The Circling Song

Nawal El Saadawi

Three classic novels by renowned feminist writer and activist Nawal El Saadawi.

A peasant family is torn apart by a village mayor and his lackeys in God Dies by the Nile, Saadawi's dark parable of poverty, female exploitation, injustice and religious hypocrisy in rural Egypt.

In Searching the disappearance of her lover causes Fouda to question everything.

Circling Song is a hypnotic meditation on gender, class and state violence told through the story of two mysterious twins.

Revolutionary Art and Politics in Egypt

Liminal Spaces and Cultural Production After 2011

Rounwah Adly Riyadh Bseiso

Through interviews, personal testimonies, and accounts of the lived experience of 25 street artists, this book explores the art of the Egyptian revolution, specifically by focussing on artistic production during 'liminal' moments as events unfolded. The author privileges the perspective of the actors themselves to examine the ways that artists reacted to events and conceived of their art as means to further the goals of the revolution. Based on fieldwork conducted in the years since 2011, the book provides a narrative of Egyptian artists' participation in and representations of the revolution, from hopeful beginnings to the subsequent crackdown and election of al-Sisi.

Richard Burton, T.E. Lawrence and the Culture of Homoerotic Desire

Orientalist Depictions of Arab Sexuality
Feras Alkabani, University of Sussex, UK

In the 19th and early 20th centuries, the Arab-speaking regions of the Ottoman Empire saw crucial changes in attitudes towards sexuality. However, contemporary Orientalists such as Sir Richard Burton and T.E. Lawrence were oblivious to certain aspects of these shifts. By comparing their autobiographical accounts of the Arab Orient with contemporary Arabic literature, Feras Alkabani exposes this critical disparity in cross-cultural portrayals of sexual morality and homoerotic desire. His detailed comparative study reveals the significance of homoerotic desire within Orientalist and Arab literary discourses.

The Hidden Face of Eve

Women in the Arab World

Nawal El Saadawi

Inspired by her experiences working as a doctor in rural Egypt and her life as an activist for women's rights, Saadawi charts the injustices and violence faced by women in the Arab world, from legal inequality to honour killings and sexual violence, including female genital mutilation. Examining the historical roots of this oppression, she tackles the controversial topic of women and Islam, arguing that customs such as veiling and polygamy are contradictory to the fundamental teachings of the Muslim faith or any other.

Reporting Islam

Muslim Women in the New York Times, 1979-2011

Edited by Suad Joseph, University of California, Davis, USA

Reporting Islam examines the coverage of Muslim women in the New York Times over a 30 year period, from 1979-2011. The analysis addresses the nature of the coverage; whether there are parallels in the depiction of Muslim women from Saudi Arabia, Iran, Turkey, and South Asia, and the US government policies toward these countries; and the relationship between feminism in the US and the representation of Muslim women in the US. The book asks critical questions about the wider implications of the misrepresentation of Muslim women in the media, and the links between print news, US foreign policy and women.

Zakariyya Tamir and the Politics of the Syrian Short Story

Modernity, Authoritarianism and Gender
Alessandro Columbu, University of Westminster, London, UK

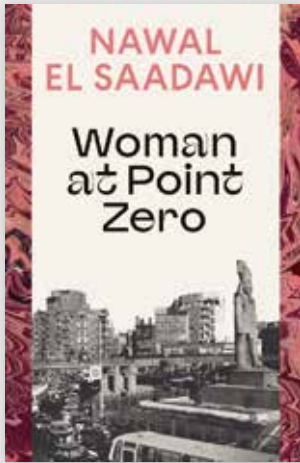

In this, the first English language monograph on Syrian short story writer Zakariyya Tamir's entire oeuvre, Alessandro Columbu examines Tamir's literary development in the context of changing political contexts, from his beginnings as a short story writer on local magazines in the late 1950s until the Syrian revolution of 2011.

Key events, from independence to the emergence of authoritarianism and the cult of personality of Hafiz al-Assad in the 1970s and the Syrian revolution are charted in the context of Tamir's works. Therein, the significance of masculinity and patriarchy are revealed as Tamir's foremost vehicles for social and political critique. Female sexuality and its disrupting/empowering nature vis-à-vis patriarchal institutions is also explored, as is the question of literary commitment.

A People Betrayed

The Role of the West in Rwanda's Genocide, Revised and expanded edition
Linda Melvern

Linda Melvern's classic, investigative account of the Rwandan genocide, now with copious new material drawing on information that came to light during the 2022 trial of Félicien Kabuga, the alleged financier of the genocide. This new evidence feeds not only into a revised chronology and a wholly new section on the build-up to the genocide, but also into a new appendix that lists the six major genocide memorial sites in Rwanda along with now-incontrovertible details of the massacres that occurred there.

Quasi-Armies and State-Building in Africa

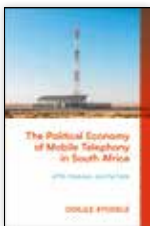

Towards a Global Understanding of Civil-Military Relations

Olaf Bachmann, King's College London, UK

Through rich new case studies of the Democratic Republic of Congo (DRC), Cameroon, and Rwanda, this open access book takes an important step in de-Westernizing civil-military relations theory. Bachmann demonstrates how and why most African militaries never developed into professional armies. Instead, they have generally remained quasi-armies in the context of the quasi-states that established themselves after independence. This book is a must-read for researchers and students of African Studies and International Development, and it is of keen interest to peace practitioners in post-conflict environments.

The Political Economy of Mobile Telephony in South Africa

MTN, Vodacom, and the State

Odilile Ayodele, University of Johannesburg, South Africa

This book critically traces the growth of South African mobile telephony companies MTN and Vodacom on the African continent. The book adopts an interpretive framework, drawing from international relations, area studies and technopolitics, to show how MTN and Vodacom were able to embed themselves in the economic component of South Africa's foreign policy and state apparatuses beyond South Africa's borders.

Everything is Allowed, Nothing is Permitted

Vice, Crime and Corruption in New China
Robert Foyle Hunwick

This is a journalist's journey into the dark side of Chinese super-capitalism, telling the hidden story of how crime, vice and corruption have flourished in modern China. From the outbreaks of politicized lawlessness in the Mao years, the book charts the flourishing of criminality in the era of opening and reform through to the present day "strike hard" campaigns against corruption under Xi Jinping. There are stories here of corrupt rural elites, notorious serial killers and a flourishing urban sex trade. Hunwick looks beyond the official propaganda to reveal a nation that is both built on and existentially threatened by an intricate economy of violence, money, power and influence.

Germany and China

How Entanglement Undermines Freedom, Prosperity and Security
Andreas Fulda, University of Nottingham, UK

In Germany and China, leading international relations expert Andreas Fulda looks critically at the increasingly interdependent relationship between the two countries. Drawing on examples from politics, industry, development aid and technology sectors and academia, the book explores how successive governments from Helmut Kohl to Angela Merkel have pursued ever-closer ties to China in the interests of short term economic gain. Fulda explores the danger of this increasing entanglement not just for Germany, but for Europe and the international world order.

Culture and Customs of the Hmong

Gary Yia Lee & Nicholas Tapp

Culture and Customs of the Hmong takes a global approach to understanding the Hmong, a people who have lived in southeast Asia for more than 4,000 years. The book deals not only with the Hmong in the United States, Australia, and other Western nations, but also with their traditional and changing lives in their Asian homelands of Laos, Thailand, Vietnam, and China. This broad international perspective allows readers to look at the Hmong through the many social, historical, economic, and cultural influences they have been exposed to in their worldwide migration, and at how they manage to maintain their many traditions across national boundaries and great distances.

India's Forests, Real and Imagined

Writing the Modern Nation

Alan Johnson, Idaho State University, USA

As they seek to explore evolving and conflicting ideas of nationhood and modernity, India's writers have often chosen forests as the dramatic setting for stories of national identity. This book explores how these settings have been integral to India's sense of national consciousness. The book casts new light on a wide range of modern writers, from Bankimchandra Chattopadhyay to contemporary authors such as Amitav Ghosh, Arundhati Roy, Salman Rushdie and Jhumpa Lahiri as well as local attitudes to nationhood and the environment across the country.
